hdÂ . .Yifan Wu was sentenced to 27 years in prison last month, but he will only serve half of that under the New York City jail's "compassionate release" program. Wu was convicted of murder for the 2014 stabbing death of 15-year-old Yusuf Bey IV at an Upper West Side playground. Wu, 31, is among three inmates serving reduced sentences under the administration of Mayor Bill de Blasio, who announced last week he would release other offenders under the program. There were 30 inmates eligible for the program as of Sept. 30, according to a prison official. De Blasio was criticized for the plan to release inmates because of the high "failure-to-appear
